

JAPANESE DENY THAT RUSSIAN ALLIANCE IS BEING CONSIDERED

TOKIO, Aug. 16.—Reports that the genro, the elder statesmen, who have begun to reassess their prerogative so remarkably, have been conferring with the cabinet on the feasibility of an alliance with Russia are denied, but they are interesting as reflecting the popular enthusiasm here for such an alliance. The distinct pro-Russian sentiment, already noted, is certainly augmenting in Japan.

Mr. Ki Inskai, leader of the Kokumin group in the diet, told the managers of his party that the genro conference referred to Japan's policy towards China. He said:

"Whatever may be the issue of the present war, our policy towards China requires much improvement. This is a question which gravely concerns the nation. That the Anglo-Japanese alliance must be respected needs no explanation, but besides, the Anglo-Japanese alliance, there is another question of great importance—important to the formation of our Chinese policy. That is the improvement of strengthening of the friendly relationship between Japan and Russia. To put the friendly relations between the two nations on a stronger basis is quite necessary to the establishment of Japan's policy towards China. Unless this object is attained Japan's policy toward Manchuria and Mongolia cannot be effectively carried out. Nor can Japan's national defense problem be completely solved."

Mr. Inskai went on to say the public seems to fear that the growth of intimacy of relationship between Japan and Russia will injure the Anglo-Japanese alliance, but such apprehension was unfounded.

Speculation from Petrograd indicates Japanese press comments on a Russo-Japanese alliance avorably impressed public in Russia.

Small Star Decorated.
Dumbfounded by the cross and religious threats, he fled to the British front. France, Sept. 17.—Lieutenant V. A. Cooper, a famous English star, has been decorated with the English military for his coolness in uncovering a ton and a half of explosives from a German mine which had destroyed an important British front. He, who had some experience, joined the Royal Engineers at the beginning of the war. For the past three months has been in the trenches at the front of Hill 6 yards when he was captured by the Germans, who broke into a German mine with high explosives. For a moment he thought his party was doomed but acting quickly he cut the wires leading to the German trench, and then proceeded to carry away the explosive material placement.

As the tunnel was very low, he and his men lay head to toe and passed the star down from hand to hand. The task occupied twelve hours, and the explosives handled showed a total weight of over 2,000 pounds. Five of the men were rendered unconscious by fumes.

No Sale of Putoon Islands.
Peking, Sept. 17.—The Chinese government has issued an official denial of the report circulated from Shanghai that the governor of Chekiang was negotiating for the sale of Putoon Island to Germans. The rumor was circulated so persistently in Peking that the foreign office communicated with the governor of Chekiang, who immediately replied that there was absolutely no truth in the report and authorized its flat denial. Putoon Island is located south of Rihong off the coast of Chekiang province.
